

Cloé Gélinas

Lawyer

Professional career

Mtre Cloé Gélinas practices civil litigation, primarily in the fields of insurance law, general civil liability, and professional liability.

As a litigator within our insurance law group, she represents insurers — both in subrogation and defence matters — as well as professionals. Her practice focuses primarily on the liability of insureds, contractors and businesses, product liability, bodily injury, and condominium law.

Mtre Gélinas has had the opportunity to represent her clients before the Court of Québec, the Superior Court, and the Court of Appeal.

She takes a particular interest in the rules of civil procedure and the technical aspects of each file, ensuring meticulous case management. Mtre Gélinas's approach is founded on client commitment, attention to detail, efficiency, and proportionality.

With a view to offer sound advice, tailored to the specific context of each client and case, she carefully assesses the risks and issues involved to propose results-oriented strategies, while limiting costs, whenever possible. When appropriate, Mtre Gélinas evaluates both the relevance and the strategic value of resorting to alternative dispute resolution methods.

Her goal: to ensure the efficient resolution of disputes while safeguarding her clients' interests at every stage of the process.
