

Patrice Deniau

Administration

Professional career

After completing his internship and working two summers at the Directeur des poursuites criminelles et pénales (DPCP), Patrice Deniau worked twelve years in the real estate law, mainly carrying out research and analysis of title deeds regarding cadastral renovation.

Before turning to law, Patrice Deniau studied business in France. Upon arriving in Canada, he resumed his studies in Arts and Letters, as well as in writing and communication at the University of Sherbrooke. These diverse paths make him a versatile and rigorous individual, enabling him to quickly adapt to tasks and mandates entrusted to him. He joined the corporate law sector of the firm in 2018.

Since 2019, he has joined the immigration law group, where he prepares immigration applications, analyzes various documents and forms for temporary or permanent residents, and conducts compliance research.
